Eritrean Refugees in Tripoli Resume Resettlement Process to Come to USA

The America Team for Displaced Eritreans has been tracking and assisting a group of 80 Eritrean refugees formerly in Libya, before and during the insurrection there, and subsequently, and is continuing to do so , now that they have made their way safely to Tunisia.

The group has updated their registration with UNHCR and the process for their consideration for resettlement to the USA has been resumed. For this, an initial 30 of the group will be moved to another location, where they will await next steps in the resettlement process, including evaluation by the US Department of Homeland Security (DHS). The remainder of the group is expected to move as well, without significant delay.
